

David Parker

David Parker is a founding partner of ABG, Inc., an Indianapolis-based global training and business-consulting firm (a division of Adayana, Inc.) Energy, enthusiasm, and passion are all words used to describe David’s approach to facilitation, consulting, and presentations. He has an uncanny ability to connect with audiences, using humor and real-world examples to drive key points home.

David is featured as the keynote speaker and seminar leader for over 100 presentations annually in the US and abroad. His focus is on performance and strategy development, and he builds on his own experiences as a business owner, as well as helping literally hundreds of companies develop and implement their specific strategies. David is a graduate of Purdue University with emphasis on economics and communication, and incorporates sound business knowledge with practical application into every presentation.

You don’t just sit in one of David’s sessions—you’re involved through questions, small group activities, large group interaction, and application exercises. If you want your audience to be truly engaged and motivated to change, consider David Parker for your next event.
